The image below is the icon set. In this blog, I'll walk you through a series of deep learning architectures that are used for analyzing images using the Convolutional Neural Networks (CNN). In the context of pictures, a CNN is made up of convolutional layers, pooling layers, fully connected layers, and a classifier layer. More specifically, each layer of the CNN is a step in machine learning which learns patterns in the images passed into it. In our example, we'll be using the MNIST data set containing handwritten digits of 28x28 pixel in size. If you're using Google Colab you can use the following link to download the dataset:
