Introduction When performing a bookkeeping task you need to make a "Call To Action" as to what you intend to do with the information. The key to a good Plan of Action is to leave no question in the mind of the Reader. If you are a sole proprietor, a doctor, or a small accounting firm, you may be able to handle every bookkeeping task by yourself. But just because you can do it yourself doesn't mean that you want to do it yourself. If you have ever been given a job that had so many books and/or journals that you had to locate a copy of the rules before you could use a single entry, you know why. Medlin General Ledger, our General Ledger program, is designed to handle all your bookkeeping tasks. But it is not designed to handle the entire task. It is meant to handle your bookkeeping duties for a year, at most. So what does it do for the rest of the business? First, we give you what you need to handle every task that you can possibly be interested in. If you are interested in the income statement, for example, you may not need to buy our other programs. If you are interested in tracking the credit card sales for the month, Medlin will handle the tracking. If you need a printable schedule for a month, Medlin will print it. But, Medlin is not a one-size-fits-all program. Each of our programs is designed to handle a different set of tasks. You can mix and match them to handle everything you need to handle. Let's look at the key features of "Medlin General Ledger": 1. Style We are not going to tell you that one program is "better" than another. It is just that you have to decide which style suits you better. "Expensive" programs require more training, but they are easier to learn. "Cheap" programs require less training, but they are more difficult to learn. Many of the fine features (such as "Context Sensitive Help" and "Automatically Enter Recurring Transactions") are found in "Premium" programs, but Medlin is designed to be the most cost effective. So which style do you want? You can learn our programs and you can then decide for yourself whether it's worth the trouble to go "Premium". If you're more interested in a "Cheap

"Medlin General Ledger" (MGL) is a general ledger program. In addition to traditional financial ledger applications, it includes "head of accounts" (i.e. a way to record every transaction) and a source of sub-ledgers (i.e. sub-accounts) and transactions (i.e. individual entries from various sources). It also includes a database of accounts, sub-accounts, transactions and balances. MGL was developed by Medlin Corp., a small independent business located in Portland, Oregon. MGL runs on Windows 95, 98, and NT. MGL can import, export and print sub-ledgers from paper ledgers, excel spreadsheets and formats. Accounts and sub-accounts can be defined, printed, and exported to a variety of formats, including Excel, CSV, EBCDIC, ASCII, HTML, and INI. MGL can be used to:

- Track a single set of books and the balances in various accounts for a single customer.
- Track a set of books for multiple customers, and to track both accounts receivable and accounts payable.
- Track a single set of books and the balances in various accounts for a single customer, while simultaneously retaining the ability to view all transactions for any month.
- Track multiple sets of books, all of which can be printed and summarized.
- Keep track of a single set of books for a customer with "account mix" (i.e. changing balances).
- Quickly pull needed financial data, for either a report or payroll.
- Quickly pull needed financial data, for any month within a fiscal year.
- Track multiple customers and exports to any format, including HTML, EBCDIC, etc.
- Generate bills, statements, invoices, etc. MGL has many features to help you do your bookkeeping more easily.
- Reports can be printed or viewed on screen. If you are printing, a printer selection screen will appear to select the printer that you want to use. A preview appears on the screen at all times during the report generation process. The keyboard can be used to navigate through report screens. The mouse can be used to open a tabbed report screen and to move through the report screens.
- All reports can be reprinted at ANY time
